Are you equipped to pay for a dog's basic medical fees and other expenses (keeping in mind such things as vaccinations, heart worm medication, annual bloodwork, flea and tick medications, wellness and dental examinations, teeth cleanings, license and registration fees, microchip registration fees, pet sitter/doggie day care fees, dog park memberships, food, treats, toys, leash, collar, tags, bedding, grooming, etc.)?

PAT THE DOGS would never want adoption costs to drive away potential adopters - however, having said that, it is important to note that the cost of adopting an overseas dog can be expensive. Flight costs, travel cages, pre-flight veterinary exams and export paperwork can run anywhere from $300 to $1300 depending on a number of variables (which airline, the absence or presence of a flight volunteer, the size of the dog, the size of the travel cage, whether any boarding is required during transit).

We feel it is important to outline these costs here, since although the low end is comparable to many animal shelter and rescue adoption fees, the high end can potentially be prohibitive for some adopters. We also feel it is imperative to point out that the remainder of the transit cost, left over after what is paid for by you, must be funded by PAT THE DOGS.

Although some of our adoptable dogs have flights that have been paid for partially or even fully by PAT THE DOGS fundraising efforts, there are always other costs involved with transport: extra paperwork, pet taxis, boarding at layover sites, cargo fees and taxes when we pick up the dogs at the airport - as well as fostering, feeding, and veterinary care costs spent prior to flying and after flying, but before adoption.

Additionally, most of our dogs are not funded in full, despite our best efforts, so we must constantly borrow against helping future dogs for fees outside what we fundraised. With this in mind, please understand that we suggest a minimum donation of $300, if at all possible (again, to reiterate, we would never want adoption costs to drive away potential adopters, so please know this is a guideline for giving only) so that we may continue to help the maximum number of seriously needy dogs.

With no paid staff and no overhead costs, 100% of all donations from adoption fees and our fundraising efforts goes towards helping not only the dog you adopt, but all others going forward in future. The more PAT THE DOGS must pay out per dog, the less we are able to help the many others awaiting homes of their own.

We are happy to go over your particular dog's estimated costs in greater detail during the home visit, should you have more questions - but at this time, we would like an idea of what you think you would be able to cover. This also helps us guide you when advising you about the many dogs available for adoption.
